

Restitution Enforcement Program

By State Attorney
Angela Corey

Our staff at the State Attorney's Office (SAO) is always looking for ways to help others. We often collect donations for local charities and provide supplies to groups who support those in need. Something else you may not realize is that we also help recover money stolen from our victims and in turn assist those who are disabled. We do this with a diversion program called Florida's Restitution Enforcement Program, also known as REP.

I am proud to tell you that last year, through REP, we collected more than $1 million for our victims. Since I took office, we have collected and returned more than $5 million stolen from public agencies in the Fourth Judicial Circuit.

The REP diversionary program is used in cases of public assistance fraud. The crimes can range from food stamp, housing, and unemployment fraud to a business collecting sales tax from its customers but not paying sales tax to the state.

Those who have committed the crime can avoid a criminal record by being enrolled in the REP diversion program. Here is how it works – an Assistant State Attorney reviews the file and determines if the case is appropriate for the diversion program. The referred defendants then sign an agreement to pay back the restitution to the State of Florida. Once that agreement is signed, a monthly payment plan is set up for the defendant. We then collect the restitution from the defendant and return it to the specific state agency, which is the victim of the crime.

In cases where restitution is paid to the Department of Revenue (DOR) – such as a business collecting but not paying sales tax – half of the restitution payment is sent to the state. The other half goes to a trust fund account called the Able Trust to help individuals with disabilities. The fund assists disabled individuals with getting to and from work daily. It also helps them be more independent. Since 2009, the Duval office has collected $2 million in DOR restitution – $1 million went to DOR, and the other $1 million went to the Able Trust.

Most of the cases sent to this program are felonies. If a defendant should not comply with their restitution agreement, the case is rejected and is then reviewed further for prosecution. This is just one of many ways the SAO gives back to our community and helps a defendant get back on track.

Gangs and Violence in Jacksonville

By Shirley Shaw

Still saddened by the murder of toddler Lonzie Barton, we were horrified and outraged recently after another sweet little face filled our TV screens. Aiden McClendon, only 22 months old, sitting in the car with his mother and grandmother, was killed when a hail of bullets intended for occupants of a nearby house slammed into his body. Rushed to a local hospital, he died within a few hours.

What is happening to our beautiful city by the sea? Fifteen murders in the first month of the new year! Every other day someone died violently, unexpectedly, probably going about a daily routine that didn't anticipate an abrupt end to plans, hopes and dreams. Families devastated by the loss of a son who was worship leader at his church, or was a promising athlete, or a 6-month-old whose parents were slain as he sat in the back seat of their car. So tragic, and so unnecessary.

Law enforcement personnel tell us many of these killings are gang-related, and city leaders pledge to commit funds and resources in a concerted effort to stem the violence. But most of us are left shaking our heads in disbelief that human beings – especially young people – can be so inhumane that they slaughter, with no apparent conscience, anyone who gets in their path. Sadly, Aiden's murder is only one of many that have occurred in the past few years.

When asked for his input on the subject of gangs in Jacksonville, JSO Chief Chris Butler referenced an excellent presentation last April by WJXT-Ch4 Morning News anchor Jennifer Waugh, who presented an in-depth look at gang murders following the deaths of two young women killed in a drive-by shooting at a Westside McDonald's restaurant.<sup>1</sup>

FBI: Gangs poison our streets with drugs, violence, and all manner of crime.

Some 33,000 violent street gangs, motorcycle gangs, and prison gangs with about 1.4 million members are criminally active in the U.S. today. Many are sophisticated and well organized; all use violence to control neighborhoods and boost their illegal money-making activities, which include robbery, drug and gun trafficking, fraud, extortion, and prostitution rings. According to the 2011 National Gang Threat Assessment report, gangs are responsible for an average of 48 percent of violent crime in most jurisdictions, and up to 90 percent in others. We're redoubling our efforts to disrupt and dismantle gangs through intelligence-driven investigations and new initiatives and partnerships. ## Building a Safer City, One Block at a Time

By Mayor Lenny Curry

These past few months have been some of the most difficult in my entire career. I attended my first – and prayerfully my last – funeral memorializing a 22-month-old baby. The tragic death of young Aiden McClendon symbolizes the urgency in solving this important issue of violence in our community. More than a dozen others have also lost their lives to violence in [January].

It's clear that this is not a northside issue or an eastside issue; this is a citywide issue. The children dying on our streets are Jacksonville's children. No parent, in any community, should have to bury his or her child due to senseless and cowardly violence in our city.

In the coming weeks and months, I will continue to work with our partners in neighborhoods across Jacksonville to identify opportunities where we can improve public safety. On Feb. 11, I joined District 8 City Councilwoman Katrina Brown and representatives from the Jacksonville Sheriff's Office (JSO), JEA and the City's Public Works department to tour a neighborhood in the 32209 ZIP code. We met with residents and surveyed neighborhood conditions to identify street lighting needs, overgrown trees and shrubs, blight conditions, and other challenges that may foster criminal activity. These are areas where the City can take direct action to contribute to safer neighborhoods.

As part of these efforts, I am hosting a series of

Grieving parents grateful for Justice Coalition

By Ann Dugger, Executive Director
Justice Coalition

Once again I feel so thankful for everyone who took time from their busy schedules to attend the Together We Can Campaign breakfast last month in support of the Justice Coalition. It's hard to believe this is the 14th such event; the first one was held in 2003 just after John Rutherford and John Peyton were elected sheriff and mayor, respectively. So much has transpired since then.

To our presenting sponsor – CSX – many, many thanks once again for your faithful support of our fundraising event. And to all the other sponsors (listed on p.9) who underwrote the costs and paid for tables, and to all the individual donors who generously responded with monetary gifts. Without all of your help, we couldn't go on.

We appreciate so much First Baptist Church (FBC) for hosting the breakfast, for the delicious food provided by the wonderful cooks, and for all the volunteers and my staff without whom the event would not be possible. There's so much to do that I'm always amazed how it all comes together.

Always superb as our emcee, Mary Baer (WJXT-Ch4's evening news anchor) graciously welcomed our guests and program participants. FBC Associate Pastor Dr. Heath Lambert opened in prayer, and students of First Baptist Academy led in the Pledge of Allegiance. Pastor Amos Bankhead's daughter, Amanda Bankhead, beautifully sang our National Anthem. Mayor Lenny Curry was called to Tallahassee on business, so Dr. Charles Moreland, City of Jax Community Affairs Director, gave opening remarks.

How can I adequately express my gratitude to Joey Vaughn, who for many years has efficiently chaired the TWC Committee, and who presented the Careholders Update. (The Justice Coalition depends not on shareholders but on the many 'careholders' who keep our victim advocacy organization up and running.) And thanks to our wonderful friend, Clay County Sheriff Rick Beseler, who spoke of the JC's partnership with law enforcement in NE Florida and about our new victim advocacy office in Green Cove Springs.

This year's voice for victims, Raelyn Rowe, eloquently told about her son Daniel's murder last July and how the Justice Coalition stepped in to help the family through this devastating time in their lives. JC Board Member John Kirkland and Chance Johnson gave a $1,000 gift certificate to the Rowes to help provide clothing and supplies for Daniel's babies who are now in their care. The grieving parents were overcome with emotion when the gift was presented; it was sorely needed.

Thanks to Johnny Williams (owner of Williams & Rowe Co., a long-time JC supporter) for his call to action, speaking of the

Inspirational Thought

Jesus Christ lived. He walked the Holy Land, working miracles and teaching truth. Then He was crucified. But His death was not the end. Because of His Resurrection, we will live again. Because of His sacrifice, we can rise above sin to experience true joy. Because He Lives, we can find His help and healing every day of our lives.

TO PROTECT AND SERVE

Our monthly recognition for the best of the best

Police Supervisor of the Month

Travis J. Cox

Police Sergeant Travis Cox, a supervisor in the Emergency Preparedness Unit, is recognized for his work ethic and for his managerial skills during some recent large scale events. In late July 2015 Travis served as part of the Incident Management Team that was put in place during the initial search for toddler Lonzie Barton. During the first six days of the search, he worked in the Planning Section and then was reassigned as the Logistics Section Chief at the North Command. This meant he was responsible for ensuring that more than 250 personnel were fed twice a day, obtaining all supplies needed, and for the coordination of the donations from hundreds of individuals and businesses – making sure they were tracked and documented correctly. Travis demonstrated exemplary leadership and management skills throughout the management of the entire investigation.

Then in early October, Travis was deployed to South Carolina as part of the Northeast Florida Incident Management Team. The team was part of a mutual aid request for support operations associated with what the Governor of South Carolina described as a “1,000-year Flooding Event.” While in South Carolina, Travis had the opportunity to serve as the Logistics Section Chief for his team while they established nine points of distribution for providing safe drinking water to thousands of citizens. Part way through the mission Travis and his team transitioned duties and he served as the Planning Section Chief while they coordinated emergency road repairs being conducted by the South Carolina National Guard.

Police Lieutenant Michael Shell said, “Sergeant Cox is an asset to not only this agency and community, but has proven he can assist anywhere in this state or even this nation and perform exceptionally well. The Jacksonville Sheriff’s Office is fortunate to have him as a supervisor and leader.”

Additionally, within the past year Travis has been asked to make several presentations: one to the Leadership Jacksonville Collegiate group and the other to a group of young people at the Malivai Washington Foundation regarding “What To Do When You Encounter Law Enforcement.” Following one of the presentations, Mr. Washington said that “Sergeant Cox was the perfect example for his students.”

Chief of Jails Tammy Morris had this to say: “In addition to these two speaking engagements, Sergeant Cox has coordinated several large-scale responses for major cases with my staff. He has been responsible to accounting for resources, organized in his approach, and overall a pleasure to work with. His positive demeanor and respectful nature make him a terrific teammate.”

Sheriff Williams said, “Travis, thank you for your continued leadership and willingness to go above and beyond your call of duty. I am honored to present you with the Police Supervisor of the Month award.”

Civilian Employee of the Month

Alecia Y. Tremble

Clerical Support Aide III Alecia Tremble, currently assigned to work in the Homicide, Missing Persons and Cold Case Units, is recognized for her vital role in helping to get personnel accounts set up and employees trained on how to operate a computer program that is available to them. For many years this agency has partnered with LexisNexis® to use one of their programs that is a highly valuable investigative tool.

Recently the JSO was able to increase the number of employees who can use this database. With this expansion, approximately 200 accounts needed to be created or re-opened, and many new users required training on how to operate the program. Alecia volunteered to take on this project in addition to her regular duties.

Her first step was to inform personnel in various departments who could possibly benefit from the program, and she explained the availability of the program in addition to the process for obtaining access and providing proper training to those individuals. Working smarter, not harder, Alecia established a program administrator for each patrol zone to reduce the workload and to act as a readily available resource for personnel working in each zone. She also personally created dozens of the new accounts herself.

In addition, Alecia coordinated with the Academy staff to organize six training classes, over a three-day period, convenient for people working all different shifts. And she tried to attend a majority of the training sessions, including those that were beyond her normal working hours, to ensure that all attendees had no issues with online access, etc. Due to Alecia’s efforts, more than 100 officers, detectives and Corrections staff were able to receive this beneficial training and now have access to this viable tool.

Assistant Chief of Crimes Against Persons Scott Dingee, who nominated Alecia for this award, stated that “...Ms. Tremble does an outstanding job in the Homicide Unit providing support to the supervisors and detectives, communicating with citizens when they contact the unit, and performing all the necessary administrative tasks the unit requires. Ms. Tremble consistently maintains a positive, friendly manner that makes her a pleasure to work around.”

Sheriff Williams said, “Alecia, thank you for being a team player and more importantly for all of the back office work that you do that aids us in our mission. I am honored to present you with the Civilian Employee of the Month award.”

Corrections Officer of the Month

Lee M. Hofstad

Corrections Officer Lee Hofstad, assigned to work in the Felony and Sexual Offender and Predator Registration Unit, Department of Corrections, is recognized for his approach to his job and for taking on additional responsibilities as needed. He was instrumental in establishing the Sexual Offender Registration process that is currently being used. He worked on the logistics and worked to establish the Operational Orders for the process and was also called upon to modify and update the process for reporting Sexual Offenders at the state level.

Along with his normal job duties as a Correctional Officer, Lee also serves as a Dual Certified Officer and in 2015 he made 23 arrests. He takes it upon himself to arrest individuals who have add-on charges, along with generating arrest dockets for the people turning themselves in at any of our facilities.

Corrections Sergeant Nicholas Bliss said, “Officer Hofstad does not hesitate to jump in and help out fellow officers requesting information that may not be in his normal job assignment. He is considered the resident expert and is continuously sought after for his expertise...”

Sheriff Williams said, “Lee, I am honored to present you with the Corrections Officer of the Month award.”

Police Officer of the Month

Jonathan W. Ervin

Police Officer Jonathan Ervin, currently assigned to work Patrol in Zone 1– Jacksonville’s core city, downtown and Springfield and the Eastside, is recognized for solving a case involving exploitation of the elderly.

In late September of 2015 Jonathan was dispatched to a dispute regarding a stolen sofa. The investigation revealed that the seller was acting as a “fence” or knowingly buying stolen property to sell later. While the call appeared civil in nature and Jonathan could have easily suggested that the complainant take civil remedies and rectify the situation, he instead used his years of experience and followed his instincts, which told him that there was more to the story.

He learned that the victims, an elderly couple who currently live in a nursing home, were being targeted by their son’s girlfriend, who was the primary suspect in the investigation. Their son’s girlfriend had forged a Power of Attorney and had it notarized by a questionable Notary Public. The suspect proceeded to drain the couple’s retirement accounts, sell their vehicles and all of the belongings from their home. The suspect also allegedly opened numerous lines of credit in the victim’s name. It is estimated their son’s girlfriend stole upwards of $50,000 from them.

Jonathan worked with a Special Prosecutor to get a warrant for the son’s girlfriend on charges of:

- Two counts of exploitation of the elderly
- Three counts of Grand Theft $10,000-$20,000
- Two counts of Auto Theft
- Three counts of Procurement of a Title for a Stolen Vehicle
- Two counts of Obtaining Goods/ Services with an Invalid Motor Vehicle

Title

- Two counts of Obtaining a Vehicle by Trick, Schemes to Defraud
- Bank Fraud
- Identity Theft
- Credit Card Theft

He also got warrants for her two co-conspirators in this case. Two out of the three individuals involved have been arrested and one is currently incarcerated in a different county on an unrelated charge. The other suspect pled guilty and returned two vehicles she took from the victims and signed them over for restitution.

Police Sergeant William Janes said, “Officer Ervin relied on his instincts and experience to guide him through this investigation – as such, three thieves are facing justice (who) otherwise would have gotten away with a devastating crime. Officer Ervin’s actions exemplify JSO Core Values of Community Focused, Respect for Each Other and Worthy of Trust.”

Sheriff Williams said, “Jonathan, thank you for your hard work and dedication to this case. You truly helped get justice for those victims. Because of your actions the suspect was stopped and the victimization of this couple ended. I am honored to present you with the Police Officer of the Month award.”

Attorney General Bondi Announces the 2015 Law Enforcement Officer of the Year

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—Attorney General Pam Bondi named Taylor County Sheriff's Office Deputy Robert Lundy the Attorney General's 2015 Law Enforcement Officer of the Year. Bondi and Governor Rick Scott recognized Deputy Lundy and seven other officers from across the state for their dedication to protecting Floridians.

"Deputy Lundy's brave actions saved lives, and I am honored to name him our 2015 Law Enforcement Officer of the Year," said AG Bondi. "Each of this year's nominees exhibited courage and skill in protecting the citizens of this great state, and I am forever thankful for these brave men and women and all of Florida's great law enforcement officers."

On Feb. 5, 2014, while a dealership serviced Lundy's county vehicle, a disgruntled employee crashed his car into the building and opened fire on the individuals inside. Lundy was shot but with little hesitation returned gunfire, wounding the assailant and ending the assault. Lundy underwent surgery for a stomach wound and eye trauma, spent several weeks in a coma and continues to face a long recovery as a result of this incident.

When faced with a life threatening decision, Deputy Lundy's bravery and quick actions saved the lives of two injured employees and potentially everyone in the dealership at the time of the shooting.

Community Conversations focused on public safety. Designed to inform and educate the public, these conversations will engage stakeholders in a series of discussions to identify gaps, needs, and opportunities for Jacksonville citizens.

We have hosted two Community Conversations on Feb. 11 and Feb. 29 focused on youth violence and recidivism. Our next session will be held on March 24, 6 p.m., at Edward Waters College to discuss "Our Health: Addressing Needs & Disparities in Communities." ing with our great law enforcement partners, we arrested 15 suspects, and more arrests are expected.

The investigation lasted more than a year and besides heroin, investigators also discovered large amounts of cocaine and fentanyl. Users will often mix these drugs in an effort to achieve a greater high, but with that high comes an increased risk of death. I am working diligently with law enforcement to stop drug trafficking in Florida. It remains one of my top priorities, and this bust is a prime example that our efforts are working. My Office of Statewide Prosecution is prosecuting this case, and I am confident justice will be done.

In closing, this past weekend our country lost one of the greatest legal minds of the last 100 years, United States Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia. Justice Scalia will be greatly missed, and in this time of mourning and reflection, my thoughts and prayers are with his family and our great country.

Improving public safety remains the top priority of my administration. The actions we are taking now will help improve local communities, restore neighborhood pride and promote a safer Jacksonville as we work toward our mission of "One City. One Jacksonville." I challenge you to get involved with your neighborhood Sheriff's Advisory Council, host a cleanup, or mentor a child. If you have information on a crime, please call the Jacksonville Sheriff's Office at 630-0500, or remain anonymous by calling First Coast Crime Stoppers at 1-866-845-TIPS (8477).

day – April 11 – the Justice Coalition will have its second annual Tossing of the Roses at The Jacksonville Landing. Last year families of victims said the event was very meaningful to them and they look forward to this year's opportunity to toss a rose into the St. John's River in honor of their loved one. The gesture signifies that as the flowers flow downstream, the memories of those we've lost will forever be flowing in our hearts and minds.

Flowerama is generously donating the flowers, so if you want to participate in this event, please let us know.

Hearsay Evidence

By Jay Howell

The Defendant was convicted of first degree murder of one victim and of attempted first degree murder of another. He appealed his convictions on the ground that the trial judge made a mistake in refusing to let the defense attorney show the jury part of a videotaped interview the police conducted the day after his arrest. In her opening statement the defense attorney conceded that the defendant shot and killed one victim and shot at his own stepfather on February 9, 2011, here in Duval County. The defendant left Florida that day, and the evidence at trial showed that he was taken into custody in Yuma, Arizona, on February 20, 2011, where the videotaped interview took place. Before the trial, the defense attorney had given the requisite notice of an insanity defense. The authenticity of the videotape was not in issue. In an insanity defense it is the burden of the accused to prove that he or she was insane at the time of the crime.

The jury in this case had to decide whether, when he shot one man and fired at another for reasons that are unclear, the defendant was insane. Two witnesses who testified at the trial maintained that the defendant had previously been kindhearted and helpful, but began to exhibit bizarre behavior some months before the incident. They further testified that the defendant became "over protective" and would sit on the washing machine to "protect" his clothes as they were being washed, and that he had barricaded his bedroom door to "protect" the contents, entering and exiting through a bedroom window. Other witnesses testified that he came to believe (erroneously) that his stepfather had injected a virus (HIV) into him, and believed employees where he bought coffee were putting poison in his coffee. Expert witnesses also testified about his mental state. One psychologist testified that he had a delusional disorder, and that psychologist concluded that the defendant was not sane at the time of the incident. The State presented the testimony of an expert witness who agreed the defendant had a delusional disorder, but concluded he knew the consequences of his actions and knew his actions were wrong.

The defense attorney sought to introduce a videotape of the interview in Arizona, an interview that both experts had examined as a part of their preparation for the case. The videotape depicted the defendant expressing his (delusional) belief that an oleander bush in a yard he mowed had been soaked in chloroform, voicing his (delusional) belief that a substantial inheritance was being kept from him, and recounting his failed efforts to obtain assistance from others in recovering his inheritance. The trial judge excluded the entire videotape on multiple grounds. The judge ruled that the defendant's statements during the interview were inadmissible hearsay, that the videotape itself was irrelevant because the issue for the jury was the defendant's mindset on the day of the incident, and, finally, because the videotape was cumulative and repetitive and would be more confusing and prejudicial to the jury. The appellate court ruled that the videotape was not hearsay because it was not offered to prove the truth of the matters asserted in the tape. Instead it was offered to prove the mindset of the accused. The appellate court also ruled that the videotape was relevant to the decision that was made by the jury.

Both experts testified that they relied on the videotaped interview and that the evidence contained in the interview was relevant to the jury's decision. The appellate court also addressed the issue of the timeliness of the videotaped interview that had occurred 11 days after the shooting. The appellate court found that it is common for experts during a trial where insanity is the defense, to examine the conduct of the defendant sometime after and before the offense occurred. The jury was entitled to consider this evidence in reaching its decision. The appellate court was unable to say that exclusion of the evidence did not contribute to the jury's verdict so the appellate court ordered the defendant's conviction reversed and his case remanded for a new trial. The name of the case is Pierce v. State and was decided by the First District Court of Appeals on December 31, 2015.

For her story Waugh interviewed Assistant State Attorney Rich Mantei, chief of the Special Prosecution’s Unit of the State Attorney’s Office, who warned that “no one is immune to gang violence. Any time you have people who do nothing but break the law, sell drugs, encourage other criminal activity and shoot at each other, those are going to be big problems in any community. There is no part of any town that’s immune from this sort of thing.”

Mantei said most gang members are between 16 and 24 years old, but there are some who are just 12 years old, or even younger. “These kids meet at the park, playing basketball or they’re on the same athletic team at school. They start hanging out together and eventually get into trouble together. They are intrigued by gang members who have money, and that entices them to join.”

He explained that “gangs here tend to be generational. A child grows up to be a gang member after [his] parent was arrested and imprisoned for gang crimes. Gangs are geographical; people living in one part of town will create a gang. They will protect anyone in that neighborhood and attack any rival gang members who try to move in.”

Because “gang” designation results in stiffer penalties for crimes, these groups omit that label from their titles. Mantei says, “Many call themselves a rap group or a production company in an attempt to not be called a gang, but that’s what they are. There’s this trading of insults, belligerence back and forth, and it’s fed through music.”

Waugh played a video of several young thugs gyrating to music, making lewd gestures, mouthing obscenities and shouting other inflammatory remarks. These kinds of videos, disseminated by social media, quickly reach their intended counterparts and generate predictable, retaliatory reactions. Mantei said they’ve had criminal cases where one gang member has killed another over lyrics in a rap song that insulted another gang member.

So for whatever reason, these misguided individuals take illegal high-powered rifles they may have stolen or acquired from other such criminals on the street, drive around in vehicles that may also be stolen, and spray their perceived targets with a hail of bullets. Maybe the gang members they seek are killed, or maybe other innocent victims are slaughtered or injured as collateral damage in this senseless war.

We must all work together to salvage the errant youth of our city which, in turn, will go a long way toward making our community safer. Concerned leaders in our community have for many years created groups and organizations to help and guide young people, provide role models and programs to help shape their futures. Following are some groups we know about that are having a significant impact. Maybe you would like to join their efforts; all would welcome your support.

Operation Save Our Sons – the stated goal of this organization started by Rev. John Guns is to adequately prepare boys for better life skills that will increase the number of graduating seniors, encourage post-secondary education, and promote both job training and armed forces entrance. The secret word is sepulchre. These concepts will in turn reduce arrest and incarceration (both of which have a dramatic effect on tax payers), as well as relieve additional economic burdens imposed on our communities in regards to the criminal justice system. <http://ososnational.org/>

The AME Ministerial Alliance’s Project CRIME (Clergy Response to the Indifference to the Murder Epidemic) initiative seeks collaborative efforts from business, faith and community groups to address this critical problem in our city. Begun in 2006 in response to a rash of murders, a dozen local ministers outline a seven-point plan to fight crime.

Glenn Ellison, ex-NFL player and Marine, heads a very effective organization that includes Empowered Parent (monthly conference to help parents cope with strong-willed children), Camp Consequence (monthly camp for parents and children where family changes begin), and Max’s Farm (a home where troubled boys live 24/7), plus weekly support sessions at five locations around town. The purpose of all this is to help kids and their parents when there are problems. About 2,000 families have been through this program since it started 11 years ago. <http://www.theparenthelp-center.com/camp-consequence.cfm>

Dads4Life, started by former JSO officer Keith Jowers, provides fathers of all ages, races, religions or cultures the support, education and information to enhance their lives and change the future of our nation. Group leaders teach fathers to stay involved in their children’s lives, understand their role in society, responsibilities and ownership of being a father, and focuses on general parenting skills. Reinforcing strong commitment to community, family and church involvement, Dads4Life established support programs and training on topics such as finances, leaving a legacy to their children and the importance of continued education. <http://dads4life.org/>

Under the joint direction of The Rev. Peter Church, Founder and Director of First Coast Leadership Foundation (FCLF) and Pastor R. I. Gundy, Pastor of Mt. Sinai Missionary Baptist Church, Nehemiah Family Life Centers’ mission is to provide continuing guidance, counsel and assistance in the challenge of being responsible and well-informed parents – where God’s intended plans and purposes for fathers, mothers and children can be restored and maintained. sinaipastor@gmail.com www.fccoutreach.com (904) 683-0972, peterchurch@comcast.net (904) 733-1382.

MetroKids Konnection was started by Terry Lane in 1996 after he built a large cabinet-making plant across the street from Cleveland Arms Apartments, reputedly the most dangerous neighborhood in Jacksonville. He realized kids in this low-income community were starving for more than just food. The complex was full of single parents, teenage boys who had multiple children by different young women, and single mothers living in a welfare system that penalizes them for getting married – a community with no skills, no hope, and a generational cycle that repeated itself over and over again, a community in dire need of a makeover. So he sold his business and started MetroKids Konnection – an afterschool program (and much more) to address these issues and to connect the kids with hope. To volunteer, call Terry Lane at 904-673-2676 or email him at terrymlane@yahoo.com.

Operation New Hope, the brainchild of Kevin Gay that was opened in November 1999 as a faith-based non-profit community development corporation, has maintained a two-pronged business model vital to sustaining broken urban communities – the development of affordable housing and successful workforce and family reintegration of ex-offenders. This local organization that works with fathers coming out of prison says children with a parent in jail are more likely to become offenders themselves. Its mission is dedicated to providing individuals and families with opportunities and tools necessary to rebuild their lives and restore communities through sustainable economic development initiatives.

A Parent's Quick Reference Card Recognizing and Preventing Gang Involvement

This quick reference guide provides common warning signs of gang involvement, but may not be all-encompassing. Parents should look for multiple signs to indicate possible gang involvement because some of these indicators alone, such as clothes or musical preferences, are also common among youth not involved in gangs. Parents are encouraged to familiarize themselves with local gang symbols, seek help early, and consider contacting school personnel, local law enforcement, faith leaders, and community organizations for additional assistance.

Warning Signs That Your Child May Be Involved with a Gang

- Admits to "hanging out" with kids in gangs
- Shows an unusual interest in one or two particular colors of clothing or a particular logo
- Has an unusual interest in gangster-influenced music, videos, movies, or websites.
- Uses unusual hand signals to communicate with friends
- Has specific drawings or gang symbols on school books, clothes, walls, or tattoos
- Comes home with unexplained physical injuries (fighting-related bruises, injuries to hand/ knuckles)
- Has unexplained cash or goods, such as clothing or jewelry
- Carries a weapon
- Has been in trouble with the police
- Exhibits negative changes in behavior such as:
  - * Withdrawing from family
  - * Declining school attendance, performance, behavior
  - * Staying out late without reason
  - * Displaying an unusual desire for secrecy
  - * Exhibiting signs of drug use
  - * Breaking rules consistently
  - * Speaking in gang-style slang

For several years A Heart for Homes, a ministry of Highpoint Community Church in Orange Park, has been helping families across Clay County going through rough times and difficult circumstances by re-establishing their homes and getting them back on their feet. Cindy Cranford and Tommy Gower have donated countless hours helping these families and individuals and have been totally committed to the organization’s mission. That mission, as stated on their Facebook page, is “to share God’s love through the collection and distribution of used household items to meet the essential needs of people in our community.”

In 2011, with the economic recession in full swing, many houses in Clay County had been sold, foreclosed, or abandoned. Many of these homes were left with perfectly good furniture and appliances sitting around, waiting to be thrown away. A member of Highpoint Community Church took notice and suggested donating these household items to families across the county that had fallen into unfortunate situations.

Since then, more than 400 families or individuals have been helped by A Heart for Homes. “Last year, we helped 132 families, the most ever,” says Cindy, who has been a part of this outreach since its beginning. Tommy, who has been retired for nearly ten years after working in upper management for Miller Electric, joined the organization several years ago. “It’s almost a full-time job,” Gower told me. “Last week we worked five days.”

Perhaps the most remarkable part of A Heart for Homes is the fact that almost all of the work by the organization is done by Cindy and Tommy, truly the backbone of the ministry. “We recycle the furniture and appliances,” Gower says. “We pick it up, store it, and if you need it, you call us and we bring it to you.” He is also quick to note his partner’s contributions. “Cindy does all the phone work – about 99 percent of it.”

A Heart for Homes helps individuals and families going through all sorts of circumstances. They are intent on “helping those who are trying to make a new life for themselves and their families whether they are starting over from homelessness, rehab, sickness, or overcoming hard times during the economic recession.” They receive referrals from Mercy Support Services to find families who are in need, but are willing to take calls from any family or individual in Clay County that is in serious need of help.

There are still many houses in Clay County that have been sold, foreclosed, or abandoned and are left with good, unclaimed household items. And there are also numerous individuals and families still working to re-establish their homes after experiencing hard times. So, Cindy and Tommy urge anyone with unneeded household items to donate them to A Heart for Homes. Tommy says they especially need desks and dressers. They also are in need of donated storage space up to two or three thousand feet. Of course, they could use additional volunteer help. “I’ve been retired for ten years; I’m 75 now,” Tommy points out.

Some of the items collected for folks who need them.

Because of all the work these two industrious people have done, A Heart for Homes has been an enormous blessing to the Clay County community. They feel that the rewards for their work are the reactions they get from the people they help. As Tommy told me, “Most of the people who call us don’t have anything but the clothes on their back and they are especially grateful.” In addition to restoring peoples’ homes, they restore their faith in God. Tommy made very clear to me what motivates him and Cindy to put all their hard work into A Heart for Homes: “What was really exceptional were the people who became Christians or started going back to church because of the fact that we helped them.”

So our hats are off to Cindy and Tommy. Thank you for the all the incredible work you do.

Donut

My sister was told by her six-year-old son that his friend was in the play at school. She asked what his friend's role was in the play. Her son said his friend was going to be a donut. She thought they must be doing a play on eating healthy or something.

A few days later, her eight-year-old son told her that the school was doing the play "The Wizard of Oz." After a few minutes she started laughing. His friend wasn't going to be a donut - he was going to be a munchkin!

Middle East Assignment

A disappointed soft drink salesman returned from his Middle East assignment. His boss asked, "Why weren't you successful with the Arabs?"

The salesman explained, "When I got posted in the Middle East, I was very sure to make a good sales pitch as our product was virtually unknown there. I didn't know how to speak Arabic, so I planned to convey the message through three posters. My first poster was a man crawling through the hot desert sand, totally exhausted and panting. Second, the man is drinking our soft drink and third, our man is now totally refreshed. Then these posters were pasted all over the place."

"That should have worked," said the boss.

The salesman replied, "Well, not only did I not speak Arabic, but I didn't realize that Arabs read from right to left."

Men's Wear

A commercial property owner has three shops in a row, all for rent. The first prospective lessee shows up and says he wants to rent the shop on the left. The owner says, "Fine, what kind of shop do you have?"

The guy says, "A men's wear shop."

The owner tells him he gets free signage and asks what he wants on the sign. "Men's Wear," says the man.

A second guy comes along and wants to rent the right-hand shop. When asked, he says he wants "Men's Wear" on his sign. The owner tells him that the left-hand shop will be the same.

"No problem," says the man.

Finally a third man comes along to rent the middle shop. The owner is most concerned because this guy also has a men's wear shop. Rather wearily the owner asks him what he wants on his sign.

The guy replies: "Entrance."

Change Oil

A young woman drove into the garage where I had a part time job. She told me this was her first car, and it was time for an oil change. Wanting only the best for her prized possession, she'd brought her own filter and oil.

When I crawled under the car, she watched my every move. After the old oil was drained, she gave me the new filter, saying she had bought the very best product for her car after overhearing a conversation between her mother and a neighbor on the subject of oil. With a confident smile, she handed me two cans of Pure Extra Virgin Olive Oil.

What We Do

Services offered by

- Provide immediate crisis intervention by assessing the victims' needs and implementing an appropriate plan of action.
- Educate victims regarding criminal justice proceedings and their rights as victims of crime.
- Network our resources to provide the victim counseling and/or support groups, if needed.
- Accompany victims to court proceedings. This includes pretrial hearings, trials, depositions, meetings with prosecutors and injunction hearings.
- Act as a liaison between victims and prosecutors, law enforcement and the media.
- Assist victims in creating an effective impact statement to the court.
- Assist victims in applying for victims' compensation.
- Assist victims in publicizing rewards for unsolved murders and missing persons.
- Publish a monthly newspaper that prints crime victims' stories, pictures of unsolved murder victims, missing persons, wanted criminals and much more.

Volunteer Opportunities:

- Delivering our Victims' Advocate newspapers
- Clerical assistance
- Research and news-paper writing
- Fundraisers
- Posting flyers for missing persons and unsolved murders
- Special events
