Learning What Citizens Really Think

By Mayor Lenny Curry

One thing I've learned by going door-to-door in neighborhoods to talk to Jacksonville residents is that they are not shy.

I have had some of the most valuable discussions with citizens in their neighborhoods. It's critical to come out from behind our desks and interact with citizens, to take their thoughts back to City Hall, and find ways to address real issues facing the people of our city.

A few weeks ago, I met with residents in the Justina neighborhood in Arlington to ask what their City can do for them. Like in many neighborhoods throughout Jacksonville, public safety is at the forefront of their concerns. Many have witnessed crime on their streets, and some have experienced it first-hand.

I go home thinking about conversations like these and come in every morning determined to take action. Every neighborhood in Jacksonville should be safe.

As mayor, I recognize that the safety of citizens is my greatest priority. I remain committed to working with Sheriff Mike Williams to ensure that law enforcement has the tools, resources and partnerships they need to keep our city safe.

Collaboration and partnerships are integral before incidents occur. Recently, our city served as host to a Counterterrorism Awareness Workshop where local, state and federal law enforcement and public safety agencies gathered to prepare, plan and coordinate a comprehensive plan of action to respond to any acts that could threaten citizens here in the Jacksonville area.

Technology can also play an important role in our safety efforts. Recently, I asked City Council for emergency funding to purchase the Integrated Ballistics Identification System, or IBIS, to help us combat gun violence. This tool provides local law enforcement access to a national database that can provide relevant and actionable intelligence that leads to quicker resolutions for gun crimes. In the coming weeks, State Attorney Nelson, Sheriff Williams and I will travel to Denver, CO, to learn more about how they successfully implement this technology.

In short, Jacksonville residents want their leaders to focus on making their neighborhoods safe for their families. Your mayor and other city leaders hear you loud and clear. And we welcome your feedback. Stay in touch with me at mayorlennycurry@coj.net.

The Justice Coalition in Clay County

By Ray Tuenge, Jr.

The Justice Coalition's Clay County Satellite Victim Advocacy Office was opened after the Clay County Sheriff's Office (CCSO) realized it was in desperate need of an advocate to assist victims in the immediate days and weeks after a crime had occurred. A gap in services between Clay County and the State Attorney's Office would often leave victims lost in the process. As a result, CCSO approached Justice Coalition about providing services on site, and a program was established in the fall of 2015.

The Clay County Sheriff's Office and the Justice Coalition had worked with each other over the years on different cases. Advocates had always been available to Clay through JC and other organizations such as Quigley House, but it became more and more apparent that victims needed help right away long before they made contact with the State Attorney's Office. "You'd have a couple days, a lapse in time, and we're going out and utilizing resources from other agencies, where now we have the ability to have a Justice Coalition advocate right here at our office," said Chief Wayne

McKinney who oversees the robbery/homicide/special victims' section of the Clay County Sheriff's Office. "Now it's a lot easier. She gets one of our phones, I can call her out to a scene, and respond right then. There is no gap in services for that victim."

It can be difficult for detectives to set aside time for victims when they are required to conduct witness interviews, collect evidence and schedule medical examinations. What's often missing is a personal touch—a person who can come in and offer an immediate support system. JC Clay County Advocate Andrea Crutchfield understands that this is a key part of her role within the Clay County Sheriff's Office. "The detectives are thankful for the advocates. It really lessens their load," she said. "When you're the law enforcement, you're kind of the disciplinarian, but we try to make them more comfortable—we're the feel-good people. And the detectives can't always be that person. They

The Rape Shield

By Jay Howell

In a recent Monroe County case, the Florida appellate court was called on to interpret Florida's Rape Shield Law. For much of our history, the defendants in rape cases often resorted to putting the victim on trial by parading in public the most intimate details of his or her prior sexual experience. Too often, these cross- examinations were part of a strategy to either intimidate the victim into silence, or worse, paint the victim as an object who had forfeited any right he or she may once have had to refuse consent to the defendant's sexual advances.

In this case, the defendant was charged with attempted sexual battery. The adult victim testified that while visiting her mother's home, the defendant, who lived with the victim's mother, entered the bathroom where she was taking a shower and touched her inappropriately. The jury found the defendant guilty as charged and he was sentenced to three years in prison followed by two years of probation.

He argued on appeal that the victim should not have been allowed to testify that she knew from prior experiences that the way the defendant touched her indicated his intent to commit a sexual act. He argued that the state attorney should not have been allowed to question the victim about prior experiences because that evidence is inadmissible under Florida's Rape Shield Law.

The appellate court stated that Florida's Rape Shield Law could not be invoked by any accused rapist to limit a victim's direct testimony because the legislature's intent in enacting the law was to shield the victim from abusive conduct by the defense. The Rape Shield Law contains a section which states that specific instances of prior consensual sexual activity between the victim and any person other than the offender may not be admitted into evidence. The court reasoned that while that section of the law may appear to suggest the prohibition on references to the victim's prior sexual activity applies to both the defendant and the victim, the rest of the statute makes it clear that is not the case. The prohibition itself applies only when the defendant is offering evidence of the victim's prior sexual activity. Otherwise, far from being evenhanded, the Rape Shield Law would be one sided against the victim, always prohibiting the victim but only sometimes prohibiting the defendant. Given the clear purpose of the Rape Shield Law, to protect the sexual crime victim, it is self-evident that the legislature never intended any such result.

As previous court decisions had emphasized, the purpose of Florida's Rape Shield Law is to protect the victim's privacy from unwarranted public intrusion. Indeed, the evidence of sexual history typically is excluded

HATS OFF LEllen Siler

Hubbard House announced that Chief Executive Officer Ellen Siler will retire in 2017 once a replacement has been hired. Siler's decision to retire will bring to a close a remarkable and distinguished career of more than 25 years of service to domestic violence victims and their children.

"Ellen Siler has been at the helm of Hubbard House for nearly 20 years of the organization's 40-year history," said Bob Baldwin, president of the board of directors. "She was there when the movement was just gaining ground, and she has seen it through to the current day, when domestic violence is broadly understood as a crime, and victims are validated and helped. On behalf of all of us on the board of directors, I say, well done, Ellen, and thank you."

"For almost two decades, I've been privileged to serve as the CEO of Hubbard House, one of the very first domestic violence shelters in the Southeast," Siler said. "I'm looking forward to a relaxing retirement and to seeing Hubbard House pass into the hands of a new generation of leadership. Beyond retirement, I will be available, as needed, as an advisor." The board of directors will conduct the process to choose Siler's successor.

During Siler's tenure as CEO, from 1998 through 2017. Hubbard House:

• Initiated the Intimate Violence Enhanced Services Team (InVEST) program, a partnership with the Jacksonville Sheriff's Office and the City of Jacksonville. Daily, a Hubbard House advocate, a detective and a city employee review domestic violence police reports, evaluate cases for lethal indicators and proactively contact the victims to offer services. The program has been credited with reducing intimate partner homicides in Duval County and has been replicated statewide.

- Embedded domestic violence victim advocates as part of the justice system. Advocates are now onsite at the Duval County Courthouse and at the Department of Children and Families to provide services to
- Established a separate 501 (C) 3 corporation, Hubbard House Foundation — with $7 million in assets — which provides financial stability for the organization and ensures Hubbard House will always be available to supply shelter and services to domestic violence victims and their children.
- Purchased and opened an Outreach Center on Beach Boulevard which is also the permanent home of their Thrift

• Increased the capacity of the agency from a $2.6 million to a $4.7 million budget and expanded the emergency shelter from 86 to 116 beds to meet the growing need for services.

In addition to serving as Hubbard House's CEO, Ellen also served as board president of the Florida Coalition Against Domestic Violence and was appointed to the Governor's Task Force on Domestic and Sexual Violence, the Commission on Minimum Standards for Batterers' Intervention Programs, the first statewide Fatality Review Team, and the Governor's Commission on Marriage and Family Support. Locally, she chairs the Domestic Violence Intervention Project and is a past chair of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women. She has been recognized as a Business Journal Ultimate CEO and Woman of Influence, Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women Poster Honoree, Women in Business Pioneer of the Year and Court TV Everyday Hero.

Beyond retirement, Siler will remain actively involved with the Women's Giving Alliance, Downtown Rotary, and the Jacksonville Women's Network.

AG Bondi Thanks DOJ for Additional Funding for Victims of Pulse Nightclub Attack

ATTORNEY GENERAL Attorney General Pam Bondi is thanking the U.S. munity in United States history and the largest ter-

Department of Justice for awarding Florida more than $8 million to assist the victims of the attack at Pulse nightclub in Orlando last year.

"I am thrilled that my office will receive additional funding to help victims of the Orlando attack," said Attorney General Bondi. "I want to thank the U.S. Department of Justice for awarding us the funds we requested so that we can continue to make payments and assist victims in any way possible."

To date, the attack at Pulse nightclub is the deadliest mass shooting by a single individual, the most lethal incident of violence against the LGBTQ comrorist attack in the country since 9/11. At the time of the shooting, more than 400 individuals occupied the nightclub. Of these victims, 49 people lost their lives, 53 suffered physical injuries and countless others were devastated by the attack.

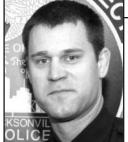

Upon hearing of the tragedy, Attorney General Bondi immediately headed to Orlando with members of her victim advocate staff to assist the victims and their families with direct and indirect needs. The Attorney General's victim advocates from across the state remained in Orlando for weeks after the attack, offering grief counseling to victims and families, assisting with medical bills and funeral expenses and forging collaborative relationships with other service providers to ensure the victims received all the help they needed.

The Florida Office of the Attorney General will administer the Antiterrorism and Emergency Assistance Program funds that were awarded. The funds will go to direct victim service costs for operation of the Family Assistance Center in the immediate aftermath of the shooting. The funds will also ensure that victims, witnesses and first responders continue to receive essential services, including mental health

Our monthly recognition for the best of the best

Police Supervisor of the Month

Scott A. Rammage

Rammage is assigned as the Training Sergeant at the Police Academy and also serves on the SWAT team. He is recognized for serving as the Law Enforcement Branch Director within the City of Jacksonville's Incident Management Team that was put in place during the State of Emergency for Hurricane Matthew in October of 2016.

In this role, he was responsible for providing effective coordination of law enforcement response efforts to storm related calls that occurred before, during and after the hurricane. While working 27 consecutive hours during the worst of the storm and the early recovery period, Rammage was credited for excelling in the three main facets of this job function: critical thinking, problem solving and decision making. Through the worst of the storm, he had about 250 officers and 15 supervisors under his purview.

Through all of this, Rammage remained focused on ensuring strict accountability of the officers assigned to the Law Enforcement Branch, as well as being responsible for their welfare and safety.

Civilian Supervisor of the Month

Dustin O. Pringle

Pringle is a Manager of Personnel Services and his areas of responsibility include payroll, time and attendance, and management of the Employee Information System.

Not too long after Pringle started working in this role, Hurricane Matthew hit the First Coast. This meant JSO had to call in employees to work beyond their normal duty hours. In order to properly track the employee costs related to the hurricane, new indexes had to be set up within the payroll

Pringle had to notify employees regarding the correct payroll procedures during the State of Emergency, and thousands of time submissions had to be reviewed to ensure the entries were correct and in compliance with regulations for potential reimbursement by the state.

Pringle persevered and worked with JSO personnel and several outside agencies to refine processes that resulted in accurate information being captured and personnel to receive the correct compensation. In addition, the information that was being captured was in a format that could be utilized by JSO and other agencies.

Civilian Employee of the Month

Shaun Taylor

Taylor is a Police Services Technician Two assigned to work in the Identification Unit. His supervisor, Deanna Goodin credits him for taking great pride in the work he completes on a daily basis. He is recognized for his dedication in seeing two projects through to fruition.

The first project is a database that shows the level of access that is granted to each JSO employee. Given the confidential nature of some of JSO's data, and the continual need to keep access approvals current, Taylor was tasked with updating the entries for more than 2,300 users. After checking every user, he ensured the electronic database's list matched employment records.

Also, Taylor was recently recognized by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement at one of their quarterly "Criminal Justice Information System Regional Working Group Meetings" for his work in updating JSO's Retained Applicant Fingerprints database.

The purpose of this database is to maintain the fingerprints of current JSO employees. In order to maintain the integrity of this system, Taylor was assigned to check more than 13,000 fingerprints being stored against multiple databases and to remove the fingerprints for previous employees and retirees. He managed this project over the course of several months, and made sure his regular duties were not impacted. Eventually, he was able to get the database down to 3,300 entries.

In addition to these two projects, Taylor is also responsible for approving access to certain criminal justice programs, informing employees when their Criminal Justice Information System or C-JIS training is about to expire. This training is required by federal law so JSO employees and vendors can view privileged information.

Police Officer of the Month

Detective Davis*

Davis is assigned to work in the Investigations Division and more specifically in the Narcotics Unit. He is recognized for his commitment and hard work during a three-year investigation known as "Operation Chain Smokers.

In 2013, JSO, the Florida National Guard, and the North Florida High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area, began receiving complaints and tips regarding three Smoker's Video retail stores in the area about their sale of synthetic drugs. The investigation into their business operations, and the collaboration between the agencies, began almost instantaneously.

Davis assumed JSO's lead role during this operation and worked with many criminal justice partners in the First Coast area. Over the course of two and a half years, he organized more than 200 undercover buys of synthetic drugs from all three Smoker's Video locations.

After each purchase made by the undercover detectives, the evidence was submitted to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement for analysis. They ensured that each submission was quickly tested without any delays. Several analysts worked tirelessly to test the more than 200 products submitted by detectives. During the same two and a half year timeframe, the entire FDLE Chemistry section continued processing each drug purchase to identify which chemical strand was

As laws were being written and passed to identify more illegal chemical compounds and create penalties for their sale and distribution, the product being sold at Smoker's Video locations was constantly evolving and labels were being changed in attempts to skirt the law.

In October of 2015, a 16-year-old died while smoking the synthetic drug "Sunshine" in a Clay County park. An eyewitness to the adolescent's death informed law enforcement officials that the synthetic drug was purchased from the Smoker's Video location on Normandy Boulevard. In December, the Medical Examiner determined the juvenile's death was caused by the synthetic drug found in "Sun-

In 2016, Davis worked with one of his fellow detectives to develop an Operation plan. As a result of his leadership and the incredible teamwork, search warrants were served at all three Smoker's Video stores in May of 2016. The stores were ultimately closed. Eleven arrests were made at that time and $244,000 in cash was seized along with one vehicle, more than 3,500 packets of synthetic drugs, and countless amounts of drug paraphernalia.

*The name of this officer has been changed to protect his identity.

Correction Officer of the Month

Ericka L. Robinson

Robinson is assigned to work in the intake area of the Pre-Trial Detention Facility. She is recognized for helping to keep contraband from entering into one of our corrections

In November of 2016, a woman visiting an inmate at the jail told the Corrections Sergeant in the reception area that she was pregnant and therefore could not go through the body scanner. With this information, the male Corrections

Sergeant requested the assistance of Robinson to perform a frisk search.

While conducting the search, Ericka discovered an envelope that contained two packages of individually wrapped marijuana and tobacco packets as well as rolling papers. The secret word is rose. The total amount of marijuana in the envelope totaled approximately 36.5 grams.

A dual certified corrections officer was notified and the visitor was placed under arrest and charged with the introduction or smuggle of contraband into a detention facility.

As a victim of a crime, Ted found the criminal justice system worked harder for the criminal than the victim. textbook, the author deals with several areas that may seem obscure to most readers. How-are quite interesting. One such area of study is "bystanderology," which is the study of the effect of crime on third parties, or bystanders, on the commission of a crime and the resulting effects on them as victims.

Victimologists have found that bystanders affect the commission of crimes and are affected by the crime in some of the same ways as the direct targets of the crimes. Another new and very fascinating area of study is "survivorology,"

which is, conceptually, the opposite of victimization. Many victims of violent crime, as well as their family members and loved ones, have found that facing the downward spiral of trauma and grief following a crime can actually lead to an enlightened sense of resiliency and a more positive outlook on life. Researchers have found that many suffer-

By Andrew Karmen

Andrew Karmen is a professor at the John Jav College of Criminal Justice of the City University of New York. This is the Ninth edition of his classic textbook in the relatively new social sciences field of victimology. Although written for students of social science and criminal justice, it is very readable and fascinating for anyone interested in victims' advocacy. He starts by defining victimology as "the scientific study of the physical, emotional, and financial harm people endure because of illegal activities. "

The author is careful to include as victims not only the direct or primary victims of criminal acts but also the indirect or secondary victims including family members and loved ones. He carefully notes how these "secondary" victims are devastated by the criminals who injured or killed their loved one. As an example, he quotes the father of a teenager at the sentencing of his murderer: "We always hope our little guy will come through the door, and it will never be. We don't have lives. We stay in every day. We can't function."

After carefully defining the field of victimology, the author goes on to cover in detail various types of crime victims, including domestic abuse victims, rape victims, bullying victims, and victims of internet crimes. He devotes an entire chapter to the role of police in preserving and respecting victims' rights and sensibilities.

but they are in a unique position to focus on other victim needs long before they ever get to court.

Perhaps the biggest payoff of having advocates inside the Sheriff's Office is that they can help investigations to move along more smoothly. Advocates are often able to make victims feel comfortable enough to start remembering information pertinent to an investigation. "When the victim can sit down and calm down, the victim advocate can sometimes get some additional information," says McKinney. "That is always very helpful for us to make sure that there's not a piece of information that we missed."

For the Justice Coalition, having an advocate in Clay County has expanded the organization's reach and allowed it to serve more victims in North Florida. It's a harmonious relationship that benefits all parties McKinney told us. "It worked out great, and it's been working out great ever since then too."

ing overview of the history of victims' rights in the American legal system. In colonial America, the criminal justice system was largely victim-oriented. "Victims were the key decision makers ... and were the chief beneficiaries. They conducted their own investigations, paid for warrants to have sheriffs make arrests, and hired private attorneys to indict and prosecute their alleged attackers." But with the adoption of the constitution and particularly the Bill of Rights, crimes came to be seen to be hostile acts against the government as the representative of the people taken as a whole. Public prosecutors were given the power formerly given to victims to decide who would be held accountable for crimes and the appropriate punishment. "The goals of deterring crime through punishment, protecting society by incapacitating dangerous people in prisons or through executions, rehabilitating transgressors through treatment came to overshadow victims' demands to be restored to financial, emotional, and physical health." Victimology has sought to re-establish the importance of victims in the criminal justice system.

Together We Can Acknowledgements

Last month, we held our 15th Annual Together We Can Breakfast. We at the Justice Coalition always look forward to this event and tremendously appreciate everyone who attends and everyone who helps to make it happen. We would like to extend a special thank you to all of the following sponsors, donors, and volunteers, without whom, the Breakfast would not be possible:

- · A.J. Johns/John Kirkland
- Don & Carol Pitman
- Charitable Fund Family Support Services

- Mrs. C. Herman Terry
- Douglas P. Conkey
- Judy Windergren
- Karen Y. Rambo
- Madden Advisory Services
- J.B. Coxwell Contracting
- Living the Dream Foundation Louis L. Huntley Enterprises
- Justice Coalition Staff
- Lighthouse Electrical
- Marcus Drewa
- · Michael J. Ward Foundation
- Philip R. Yates, PHD, PA · Mrs. Robert C. Corbett, Sr.
- Dr. Paul and Candie Shirley
- · Powell International, Inc.
- · Wilson & Johns, P.A.
- Valerie J. Rao
- FLOWERAMA, In-Kind
- WJXT TV4, In-Kind

We also want to recognize the following dignitaries and individuals who took time from their busy schedules to support the Justice Coalition:

- Melissa Nelson, State Attorney
- Vic Micolucci, News Anchor, WJXT TV4
- Pastor JimBo Stewart, Hibernia Baptist Church Hyde Park Campus
- · Pastor Amos Bankhead, Combined Gospel Christian Fellowship Church
- Ann Dugger
- Amanda Bankhead
- Students of Sanctuary on 8th Street

Also, thank you to all of the volunteers who helped to make sure the event went along smoothly: Janice Chambers, Janice Phillips, Jen Swanner, Felicia Stewart, Joy Williams, Lynn Thompson, and John Milton, Sr.

Lastly, thank you to all of the attendees that came out to join us for breakfast and lend your support to our cause. It was wonderful to have everyone come out for the purpose of recognizing innocent victims of violent crime and raising funds to help us continue providing this vital service to the community.

Me and my son had gotten behind on our rent when this first happened with my daughter. It was hard to function and do everyday tasks. It was hard to get back on my feet and find another job, but then the Justice Coalition came through for me.

Lysa became my advocate about three years ago and the Justice Coalition has been there from day one. When tragedy hit, the Justice Coalition was here full time. They were especially helpful with grief counseling for my son—Kalil's twin brother.

- Lynette Roebuck

Lynette Roebuck is the mother of 20-year-old Kalil McCoy who was shot to death in 2011. Frederick Wade was convicted of second-degree murder and sentenced to 25-years-to-life in prison. That sentence was successfully appealed, but Wade was resentenced to life.
