Refusal to testify

By Jay Howell

Can the victim of a crime simply refuse to testify in a criminal court proceeding because reliving the horrible experiences of the criminal act in court would be too painful?

In 1985 the defendant was tried in a Miami courtroom and convicted of first degree murder, armed sexual battery and armed kidnapping. The sixteen-year-old victim, her friend, also sixteen, and a twenty-year-old acquaintance drove together to the beach near Key Biscayne. After parking the car and sharing a bottle of wine, the young people were approached by the defendant. Impersonating a police officer, the defendant pulled out a baseball bat and forced the twenty-year-old male to walk back to his vehicle. The defendant struck the young man across the back of his head with the baseball bat and continued to beat him. He died from his injuries.

The defendant then kidnapped one of the sixteen-year-old young women, threatened her at gun- and knife-point, and raped her twice. He told her if she called the police he would kill her and her family. When he left, she called the police. The defendant was tried and convicted, sentenced to death for the murder, and given life in prison for the armed sexual crimes and kidnapping.

Although the defendant's convictions and sentences were initially affirmed by Florida courts, after twenty years, the defendant was granted a new sentencing hearing before a new judge when it was discovered that the original trial court judge requested the State, without the presence of the defense attorney, to prepare the sentencing order.

The sixteen-year-old sexual assault victim was eighteen when she initially testified at the defendant's trial. She is now approximately forty-five years old and refused to testify again at the new sentencing proceeding. Based on her refusal to testify, the State filed a motion to have her declared unavailable as a witness and to allow her former trial testimony to be read to the jury in lieu of her live testimony at the new sentencing proceeding.

Her near-death experience brought life

By Lisa Root

She's a store owner and a business woman. She's a lady and what some would admiringly call a diva. She's a mother and a friend. She is a contributor to the community and a survivor of domestic violence.

Fifteen years ago, Sylvia Treasures could not have imagined being where she is today. She had moved to Jacksonville, Florida, from California to seek a new beginning in life after a rocky start to adulthood. She gave birth to a son her senior year of high school, still graduating with a GPA of 4.0, and within a couple of years had fallen in love with and married a man she believed was a loving and suitable fit for her life.

After a few months, Sylvia discovered her courtship with him had been tainted by his secret relationship with another woman. So she made the decision to pack her belongings and move with her young son across the country to live with the grandparents who had raised her as a little girl in her parents' absence.

However, the idea of Sylvia's move did not sit well with her husband. Unwilling to be left behind, he convinced Sylvia he was sorry for cheating and wanted to make their life together work; he was coming to Florida with her. As much as she wanted to remove herself from the issues, Sylvia desired a successful married life and family, so she said yes. In her mind, anyone who would uproot his life and leave behind so many family and friends to live 3,000 miles away knowing only her, must truly love her and want their marriage to be successful, too.

This success was not to be.

Sylvia and her husband both worked and became involved in the community through a growing Westside church. "Right living" did not change the person her husband was, though. Despite all he had left behind in California, his desire for other women came with him, and for Sylvia that meant more heartbreak and lots of questions. He answered her questions with lies, mental and emotional abuse, physical abuse, and a near-fatal episode.

"If a man hits you once, he isn't going to stop," she said. "The first time a man ever puts his hands on you should be the very last time...if he sees you stay and forgive him, it's easy for him to do it again and again."

Human trafficking crime organization dismantled

ORLANDO, Fla.—The Orlando Metropolitan Bureau of Investigation (MBI), The Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE), and Florida Attorney General Pam Bondi's Office of State-wide Prosecution recently announced that charges have been filed and arrest warrants have been issued against three Central Florida defendants for human trafficking for commercial sexual activity, human trafficking for labor and services, and deriving support from the proceeds of prostitution.

"Human trafficking is an abhorrent crime, and thanks to this collaborative effort, the Orlando area men have been arrested for their role in an alleged human trafficking organization," Bondi said.

Richard Rawles (DOB 06/08/39), was at the center of the investigation. He is a violent career criminal, with 47 felony and 10 misdemeanor arrests, for crimes such as robbery, sexual battery, battery, child abuse, cocaine possession, and other charges. His associates, James Bernard King (DOB 05/03/64), and Wilbert Shaver (DOB 01/06/53), were also charged with human trafficking and other charges related to this investigation.

These charges are a result of an MBI investigation. The investigation revealed that Rawles was actively recruiting female prisoners from Lowell Correctional Institution State Prison for Women in Ocala, Fla., and was transporting those women to Orlando after their release. The defendants advertised the females on prostitution websites and transported them to locations in Central Florida to commit acts of prostitution. Female victims were repeatedly provided narcotics, including cocaine and heroin, and were not allowed to leave the residence unless they were escorted by one of the defendants. Several of the victims were threatened and beaten by Rawles and King.

MBI requests that anyone with additional information related to this human sex trafficking investigation please contact MBI at 407-836-9701 or Crimeline at 407-423-TIPS.

The Metropolitan Bureau of Investigation is a multi-agency Narcotics, Vice and Organized Crime Law Enforcement Task Force assigned to Orange and Osceola Counties.

The war is still raging

From the Director

by Ann Dugger

Several months ago, the Victims' Advocate featured a story on the strides made in the State of Florida with regards to the war on synthetic drugs. The importance of this fight is indescribable because the target for sales of these drugs is our children and these drugs are deadly.

When my children were little, tricky sellers of drugs were putting LSD on backs of stamps and selling them near schools to children who would lick the stamps and have strong reactions to the drug—some ending up addicted, in hospitals and even in morgues. Laws have made tougher penalties for those who would attempt to sell any drugs within 1,000 feet of a school.

Nowadays, though, criminals are creating new forms of drugs and packaging them to appeal to young teens, such as the synthetic drugs, Scooby Snacks and Cotton Candy. These are dangerous knock-off versions of marijuana and LSD and were being sold "over the counter" in convenience stores all over Florida. They bear the picture of the popular cartoon face of Scooby Doo and were displayed in plain view of anyone who might be curious enough to try them. Anyone could purchase them; even children. That is, until Florida's Attorney General, Pam Bondi, began cracking down on the sellers.

Ms. Bondi teamed up with law enforcement all over the State to make a clean sweep, raiding stores that sell this and other synthetic drugs and making it a crime to sell them to minors or anyone else. The Fox News conglomerate did a full story on their efforts, showing where the drugs were displayed as well as stored, and how easy it was to purchase them. Today, Ms. Bondi said on the show, only unscrupulous store owners still house and sell the synthetic drugs. They are usually sold in a back room, out of public view. As new and dangerous synthetic drugs are manufactured, the list of Schedule I and II illegal drugs grows longer and the fight continues.

The original war on drugs is still in high gear across the nation. The anti-drug campaign, Just Say No, achieved considerable success in schools, educating children on drugs and their dangerous, life-altering effects. But where is that campaign today? The streets are full of drugs and students are finding more and more creative ways to carry and even sell drugs in the corridors and on playgrounds of schools. I spoke about this in my column last month as my concern for child safety in school grows.

TEST YOUR KNOWLEDGE "SYNTHETIC DRUGS FACTS"

— SEE PAGE 7 OF THIS EDITION

Maybe it is time to rejuvenate the anti-drug awareness program. School teachers and students, as well as parents, need to know what is going on in the world of drugs and how classrooms and individuals can be affected. Teachers need to be knowledgeable about what the students are dealing with, how to identify the drugs, and the clever ways some have to disseminate these dangerous chemicals.

We must set our children up for success and we must hold accountable those in positions of authority to provide education and alternatives. Too many adults are a part of this drug culture and too many children are following suit. Parents are losing children to drugs that can kill them the first time they ever try them. Let's raise our voices together loud enough for lawmakers and educators to hear. And let us keep them raised until our schools...our children...are safe.

Civilian Employee of the Month

JENNIE DENMARK

Jennie Denmark, RN, Infection Control Nurse for the Health Services Division, covering the Pre-Trial Detention Facility, the Montgomery Correctional Center and the Community Transition Center. This is a demanding job due to the thousands of inmates housed in the three facilities and to the risk for serious transmittable diseases such as tuberculosis, influenza, meningitis and MRSA – all could easily be spread among the inmate population. Dealing with diseases of this nature requires constant surveillance, testing the high-risk population and proper courses of treatment for the affected population, plus all the work required to prevent outbreaks.

Nurse Denmark has been very helpful regarding occupational exposures to blood-borne pathogens. As first responders, patrol officers and correctional officers frequently have contact with blood and have a higher risk of getting infected with HIV and Hepatitis C viruses. Jennie makes sure tests are done in a timely manner and that officers are properly notified of the results. She also educates them on infectious diseases.

Jennie has worked with DOC Staff to conduct tuberculosis and influenza testing, as well as testing for other types of infectious diseases an inmate may be carrying. During flu season she ensures that high risk individuals are properly immunized, that potential cases are tested, and that confirmed patients are isolated from the rest of the inmate population while they receive treatment.

She also chairs the Infection Control Committee for the JSO and is a member of the Duval County TB Coalition.

Through her organizational contacts and research, Jennie constantly learns new information about various infectious diseases, and she then educates the Health Services staff on these issues.

Chief of Health Services Al Diaz commended Jennie “for displaying an absolute commitment to her mission, always willing to go the extra mile to ensure that inmates at risk are identified, diagnosed, treated and followed up even when they return to their communities...”

Police Supervisor of the Month

J.C. LADUE

Sergeant J.C. LaDue, assigned to the Patrol and Enforcement Division Offender Tracking Unit, is recognized for his leadership and assistance he provided with several Human Trafficking investigations. He was a unit supervisor of the Crime Free Multi-Housing program, which is part of patrol. This unit routinely assisted JSO's Integrity and Special Investigations Unit and the FBI Crimes Against Children Task Force with Human Trafficking investigations. At LaDue's direction his squad aggressively patrolled the city's hotels and motels where sex traffickers commonly operate and provided invaluable intelligence to both agencies. In addition,

J.C. and his squad worked closely with hotel and motel operators who also provided information that assisted with cases of this nature.

In May, while investigators interviewed a young adult who was a victim of Human Trafficking, they learned the trafficker was traveling in a vehicle in the area with two additional victims. Investigators contacted J.C. and provided him with the limited information they had about the trafficker, the victims who were with him, the vehicle they were in and the last place they had been seen. J.C. quickly devised a tactical plan, deployed his squad members, and within a short time the suspect vehicle was located in Jacksonville, the trafficker was detained and the two additional victims were rescued.

Following the arrest of the trafficker, LaDue directed additional investigative efforts at the crime scene that led to the discovery and seizure of several critical pieces of evidence which led to the arrest of the trafficker on state felony charges and subsequently on federal Human Trafficking charges. Between December 2013 and May 2014, J.C. has assisted the Crimes Against Children Task Force with obtaining six federal indictments for Human Trafficking and other related charges, and his squad has had a part in the recovery of at least three juvenile victims and numerous adult victims of Human Trafficking.

Lt. Scott Dingee, who oversees JSO's Integrity Unit said, “Sgt. LaDue is adept at recognizing the signs of sex trafficking and he immediately contacts task force members so that investigators can respond. Because of his leadership and superior abilities, his squad has been a crucial asset in the fight against domestic sex trafficking in Jacksonville.”

Reserve Officers of the Month

MIKE S. GRIFFIN AND MURRAY R. KRAMER

Reservists Mike Griffin and Murray Kramer are honored for assisting with the apprehension of two burglary suspects considered to be armed and dangerous. In May both officers were working a Romeo assignment in Zone 4 on the Westside. (JSO Reserve Unit implemented Romeo assignments in 2012, using reserve officers as backup and to assist patrol with transporting suspects.) Officers were dispatched to a residence near 103rd Street where a person was shot at by an unknown individual.

The victim stated that when he arrived home and saw a white Ford Expedition parked in his driveway, he immediately checked his outdoor property to make sure nothing had been taken and then went inside his home. A short time later a young male walked through the yard, and apologized for parking in his driveway. The victim went inside to get his keys to move his car, and when he returned the man had driven through his lawn and backed the vehicle up to his neighbor's house. He then walked to his backyard trying to get the tag number. Returning to his driveway, he noticed a second male standing on his neighbor's back patio, standing in a shooting stance with his hands pointed toward him. Hearing a loud bang that sounded like a gunshot, he went inside and called 911.

Zone 4 officers responded, cleared the neighbor's residence and confirmed it had been burglarized. While investigating, patrol established a perimeter in the area of the incident, and this is where Murray and Mike got involved. They were stationed in front of the Dollar General store in the 9100 Block of 103rd Street. At that time the Air Unit spotted the suspects running toward the Dollar General store. Mike and Murray heard the radio transmission from the JSO Air Unit and intercepted one of the suspects running northbound on 103rd Street near the entrance to the Dollar General Store. The two took the suspect into custody without incident. The second suspect ran to the rear of the vehicle and was detained by another responding unit. Mike and Murray transported one of the suspects to headquarters for interview by detectives and returned to the scene to assist the K-9 Unit with an article search and to transport the second suspect involved in the case. Detectives charged the suspects with Armed Burglary and Aggravated Assault.

Reserve Lt. Christopher Newsom said, “The courage and actions of these two officers directly affected the capture and arrest of two dangerous criminals, giving little thought of the dangers surrounding this incident. Both officers, collaborating as team players with the other units, were successful in the apprehension of these suspects without injury or further incident.”

Corrections Officer of the Month

GEVONNIA M. THURMAN

Corrections Officer Gevonnia Thurman, Prison Programs Unit, is recognized for her work in handling program schedules for inmates housed at Montgomery Correctional Center, focused specifically on helping to reduce recidivism. “G” (as she is called) assisted with redevelopment of the internal website used for scheduling, following which she trained fellow officers on its use to help get inmates in the programs geared towards their needs. She meets with inmates in each dorm several times a week, encouraging them to enroll in courses, then she follows up with instructors to ensure everything is running efficiently.

“G” has been a key player in the success of several programs within the Department of Corrections. “Thinking for a Change” is offered at the jail, prison and the Community Transition Center, an “integrated, cognitive behavior change program for offenders...” (Source: National Institute of Corrections website) This 9- to 13-week program is taught by DOC staff members, the curriculum designed to address cognitive self-change, social and problem solving skills – and more importantly to reduce recidivism among revolving-door inmates.

Retired Sgt. Barbara Weber said, “With the start of the first class Thinking 4 Change (T4C) it was evident that [Gevonnia's] instructor skills and classroom presence had a huge impact on the class. The respect the inmates gave her and the knowledge she imparted to them made them change their behaviors.” This change in behavior was evident in the inmates' contact logs. Prior to the class several inmates were constantly being written up on disciplinary reports, but while attending the 25 classes for this program, they received NONE. Even after the class was complete, with the exception of one inmate, no more had incidents while at the facility. The first class to graduate from the program at the prison was comprised of six males, followed by a class of ten males and a class of six female graduates from the Community Transition Center.

Sgt. Weber also stated, “Several inmates have commented to me about what a positive and helpful officer she is and how much they think she has helped.” Parents of incarcerated individuals have commented on Officer Thurman's work and how much she has worked to assist individuals in setting up treatment once they have left the facility.

Sheriff Rutherford said, “Thank you for being Community Focused, for striving to implement these programs and innovative ideas in order to reduce recidivism in Jacksonville.”

Police Officer of the Month

CHRISTOPHER J. RODRIQUENZ

Zone 2 Officer Chris Rodriquez is recognized for his work in April that led to the arrest of an armed convicted felon following a dispute. He responded to a gas station on Atlantic Boulevard to take a statement from two victims regarding a lover's quarrel that happened at a different location. Investigation revealed the suspect was in a dispute with his girlfriend of six months and her male friend. The girlfriend explained she had spent the night at the house of the male friend and his wife, and when later the suspect yelled at her about it and pushed her to the ground, she had called her friends to help.

The wife attempted to calm the suspect over the phone then asked her husband to go to his house and attempt to reason with him. The argument continued at the suspect's house, and the male victim stated he saw two guns, a BB gun and a black semi-automatic firearm. The suspect shot his girlfriend six times with a BB gun then put the semi-automatic firearm against the side of the male victim's neck and threatened to kill him. When the victims tried to call 911, the suspect threatened to kill both of them if they didn't hang up, so they complied and went to a nearby gas station to call police.

Searching for the suspect, Chris went to his home at 3:45 a.m. and saw the suspect leave his residence. Seeing police, he quickly turned back inside. Using proper safety procedures, Chris talked the suspect out of his residence and took him into custody without incident. He was also determined to locate the firearm used in the incident, especially when it was confirmed the suspect was a convicted felon. The secret word is trust. He and Sgt. Rick Valentine obtained a warrant to search the residence, and seized the following: Two firearms (one used in the offense, the other stolen); 405 grams of powder cocaine; 495 grams of marijuana; 100 grams of bath salts; paraphernalia; and $920 in cash.

Lt. Keith Clement stated, “Officer Rodriquez is to be commended for his exceptional investigative efforts, coordination, and dedication to apprehend and arrest an armed drug dealer and convicted felon.” Sheriff Rutherford said, “Chris, this is some great work! You certainly represent the Sheriff's Office Core Values of Community Focused and Always Improving.”

Corrections Supervisor of the Month

RICHARD W. LONG, JR.

Sgt. Richard Long, Procurement and Prisons Industries supervisor, is responsible for the oversight of inmate labor in the Montgomery Correctional Center's supply warehouse, mattress factory and Prison Industries Unit. He also coordinates the annual projections for needed supplies such as inmate clothing, linens and bedding, and manages the silk-screening operations where all inmate clothing items are printed with DOC lettering (using trustee labor). During 2013 this process saved more than $10,000 by printing more than 16,600 pieces of clothing in-house, and 4,024 mattresses with integrated pillows were produced with a savings of more than $50,000.

Long is honored for organizing and assisting with the launch of a new prison program called “A New Leash on Life” that teaches inmates how to train dogs using positive reinforcement techniques. Even though this assignment was outside his normal responsibilities, Rick jumped at the opportunity to manage a unique program that certainly could have many challenges. He toured several local state prisons to see how they were handling day-to-day operations with their canine programs and met with First Coast No More Homeless Pets and the Jay King Dog Academy to learn about the benefits of these programs.

These benefits include providing shelter dogs with basic obedience training to improve their adoptability (thus reducing their likelihood to be euthanized), and inmates are taught how to train the dogs using positive reinforcement techniques. The goal is to have all dogs immediately adopted. The benefits of this program are not just for the dogs; the stress of incarceration can be difficult and training these dogs improves the mental health of the inmates thus reducing discipline issues. Inmates also learn valuable life skills, including teamwork, responsibility, patience and job skills relating to canine care and training. The first class of dogs graduated in July, the second in August.

Supervisor Lt. Jason Rogers said, “Richard has worked tirelessly to incorporate the care and training of the dogs without negatively impacting the regular operations of our facility. It is hard to describe, but introducing dogs into a secured correctional facility to be cared for, live with and be trained by inmates is a very complicated task. These types of programs show how our staff truly cares about the citizens incarcerated in our institutions and understand that it is our responsibility to make an effort to rehabilitate them so they return to our communities in a better state than when they came in.”

Sheriff Rutherford said, “Rick, thank you for your leadership and for overseeing this program. I know it has done great things for not only the inmates, but for the dogs enrolled in the program. Keep up the good work!” Rick was previously recognized last December as Corrections Supervisor for his work at the jail prior to his lateral move to the prison.

When she appeared before the trial court prior to the defendant's new sentencing proceeding, she testified that, although she understood the trial court could order her to testify, hold her in contempt of court for refusing to testify, and fine and incarcerate her for her refusal, she would continue to refuse. She explained to the judge that she simply could not and would not testify due to the mental and emotional stress and the effect of the proceedings. She explained the emotional toll the events of that evening had on her and her life and how she could not subject herself to reliving those events again after so many years.

The trial judge denied the State's motion to declare her "unavailable" and refused to permit the state to read her former testimony. The appellate court declared the judge's decision to be clear error. Finding that the trial court misapplied the law, the appellate court ruled that the trial judge incorrectly focused his attention on her ability to testify rather than her refusal to testify. Florida law allows a witness to be declared "unavailable" if he or she persists in refusing to testify. She told the court the case had affected her for the past thirty years; it continued to affect her emotionally and mentally, and if she testified it would take her back to a place she was not willing to go. The appellate court found this evidence sufficient for the court to declare her "unavailable" and to admit her former trial testimony.

Accordingly, the State's petition was granted and the case remanded to the trial court with instructions that the judge should re-examine the issue of her unavailability under the correct standard. The case is State v. Roberts and was decided by the 3rd District Court of Appeals on April 30, 2014.

Sylvia reached out for help, but was encouraged to stay in her marriage and make it work as a devoted Christian. She grasped the concept and longed for its reality, but understood it takes two. Not everyone wants to be helped, she realized. But in spite of all her prayers and her efforts, had God let her down?

A few days after making the bold decision to leave her husband and living under threat of murder for doing so, Sylvia received a visitor at her job, working at the Stockton St. Mary Ann's Chicken her grandfather owned. The sound of her husband's kind voice and sweet talk mingled with her hope to work things out, as well as her need for transportation, and before she could change her mind, she was getting into their only car and heading home. Only this time, her hope for change was quickly squelched as they drove off and his hand connected hard with her face, making her a bloody mess. He yelled at her that this was it—he was going to kill her. He spelled out his maniacal plan to end her life as he drove to the darkened area of McCoy's Creek Road.

Sylvia sat in sheer terror as the husband of her youth was suddenly fixated on killing her. He pulled over to the side of the road near the creek and, grabbing the steering wheel's locking device, known as "The Club," ran around to the passenger side. She thought quickly to jump to the driver's seat and drive off, but he was too quick. He was at the passenger's side in seconds, pulling her out of the car as she screamed for help. The last thing she saw as she raised her hands to shield her head was his enraged face and the club poised above her head.

In that split second, she called silently upon the God she knew. "Lord, please don't let me die like this." The next few seconds seemed an eternity of darkness and silence. The next thing she saw astounded her.

"I opened my eyes with my hands over my head wondering when the blow was coming. I saw my husband on his knees crying. The club had fallen to the ground like something had forced it from his hand," she recalled. "I knew God heard my cry for help and spared my life."

Her would-be murderer was on the ground, sobbing remorsefully and threatening to drown himself in the creek. Sylvia found the wherewithal to help him into the car and drive to her grandparents' house. She did not press charges, though he had been in and out of jail over the years for abusing her. Somehow they stayed together on and off for nearly a year after that, but something was different. She had found strength. And that strength compelled her to leave...this time, for good.

One Wednesday night he slapped Sylvia while she was driving her family to Bible Study. Her son cried out from the back seat, "My mama always be so nice to you and you be so mean!"

That was it. She and her son got out of the car at a traffic light and made their way to a store where she called police. Back at home in the care of a female officer, she was given shelter information with a warning.

"If you are coming back here, don't waste my time," she said. "Too many times I come back to see the woman leaving in a body bag."

The first time a man ever puts his hands on you should be the very last time.

— Sylvia Trasures

Sylvia and her son filled up a garbage bag with clothes and left with the officer. Days later, she was at Hubbard House, Jacksonville's battered women's shelter, where they remained six months, allowing her to save money for her own place. Her husband went to jail, but was released and sentenced to anger management classes. Neither of them ever looked back.

Today Sylvia is a force to be reckoned with. She discovered her value and refuses to let anyone alter that again. Her greatest hope is to empower women by helping them realize their worth and the love of the One who created them. She believes valuing and loving oneself is the key to avoiding abusive relationships.

Years after finding her strength, her voice, and her place in this world, and using her business, Dainty Treasures—a local dress shop—to minister to women, she is standing up in the community to speak out against domestic violence. In fact, she will speak this month at the Hubbard House 20th Annual Barbara Ann Campbell Memorial Breakfast, sharing her story of victory so that other women will know they, too, can overcome and that there is truly life after domestic violence.

Intern Program
at the SAO

(L-R) Judges Mallory Cooper, James Daniel, and Angela Cox talking with the new interns

By Angela Corey
State Attorney

I would like to tell you about a group of individuals at the State Attorney's Office (SAO) who rarely get recognition for the work they do - the SAO's interns. These individuals are undergraduates as well as law school students who assist our prosecutors with their cases.

Each intern is assigned to a specific Division, such as Special Prosecution or the Special Assault Division. Once assigned to a Division, the interns help prosecutors with a variety of tasks that will aid them in their upcoming trials. For example, an intern may do research on criminal cases, including research on case law, which can be used in a pending case. The interns also have an opportunity to go to court and observe the trial process.

The SAO intern program runs year-round and is separated into summer, fall, winter and spring sessions. In fact, 30 young men and women just finished their summer internship at the SAO. As part of the program, interns take "field trips" to the Duval County Jail, an area prison, the federal courthouse, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement office in Jacksonville, and the Jacksonville Sheriff's Office property room. By visiting these places, the interns can get a better understanding of the entire judicial process and how the SAO works in conjunction with other local agencies. The interns also have an opportunity to sit down and talk with local judges about their careers and experiences working in the judicial system.

Kristen Liesch, who serves as the SAO's intern coordinator, says the intern program gives individuals a chance to see firsthand how the judicial system works. It also gives these students an opportunity to see if they want to pursue a legal career.

The SAO's summer interns wrapped up their learning experience by participating in a mock trial during the SAO's summer camp. This was the perfect opportunity for them to utilize all the skills they acquired during their internship.

I am happy to report that our fall interns have just arrived at the SAO! We welcome this group of eager young men and women and hope that their experience here provides them with all the knowledge and skills necessary to one day becoming a successful prosecutor.

Let's stop domestic violence in October – and every month

by Mayor
Alvin Brown

October is officially recognized as National Domestic Violence Awareness Month: it's also a year-round responsibility.

The statistics on domestic violence are shocking. Every day in America, on average, three women are killed by their current or former partners. One out of every four women will experience domestic violence in her lifetime. Every year, an estimated 1.3 million women are victims of physical assault by an intimate partner, even though most cases of domestic violence still never get reported to police. And, every year, more than three million children witness domestic violence in their homes.

But this is about more than numbers.

Behind these statistics are real people contending with their own unique circumstances and challenges. They need our help. Victims must get the support, advocacy and empowerment they need to "break the silence" and find safety. We must also provide support to children who witness domestic violence. They're victims, too. Girls who witness domestic violence are more vulnerable to abuse as teens and adults, while boys are far more likely to grow up to become abusers themselves. Finally, perpetrators of domestic violence must be held fully accountable by the law. And they should get the help they obviously need to stop their violent behavior.

One out of every four women will experience domestic violence in her lifetime.

— Mayor Brown

In the past 20 years, since Congressional passage of the landmark Violence Against Women Act (V A W A), America has experienced a sea of change in public attitudes about domestic violence. When I was growing up, it was considered largely a private family matter. Now, domestic violence is more often treated by law enforcement, the justice system and the community as the serious crime it is. But the problem of domestic violence is far from solved. If we needed any reminder, we got it from the recent appalling video of NFL football player Ray Rice punching his fiancée unconscious in an elevator.

In Jacksonville, we've been working to build a stronger, more effective response system to protect victims and reduce domestic violence. We've received state and national recognition for our Intimate Violence Enhanced Services Team, known as InVEST. Created in 1999, it's a collaborative effort among the Sheriff's Office, the City of Jacksonville, and Hubbard House to increase victim safety in the most potentially lethal cases. On a daily basis, InVEST staff review domestic violence police reports, evaluate cases for lethal indicators and work with victims to offer services.

Jacksonville has also been fortunate to secure funding from the U.S. Justice Department's Office on Violence Against Women. Two years ago, the City received a major federal grant in partnership with the Fourth Judicial Circuit Court, the State Attorney's Office and Hubbard House. This federal grant has made it possible to expand the court's dedicated domestic violence docket, ensure aggressive prosecution of these crimes and provide advocacy services to victims. These efforts at the government and nonprofit level are crucial.

Ultimately, though, each one of us has our own personal role and responsibility to help "break the silence." Each one of us needs to do what we can to stop the violence – in our homes, in our neighborhoods, in our community.

When I was growing up, it was considered largely a private family matter.

— Mayor Brown

Synthetic Drugs: What You Need to Know

Synthetic drugs are the cause of growing numbers of injuries and deaths, particularly in young people across the country.

What are synthetic drugs?

Synthetic drugs are chemically laced substances akin to marijuana, cocaine and methamphetamine that are sold in back rooms at convenience stores, gas stations, and tobacco shops.

Based on their chemical make-up, these drugs are commonly divided into two categories:

- Cannabinoids

Popularly known as K2 or Spice, cannabinoids are chemically formulated versions of synthetic marijuana that consist of lab-manufactured THC.

Often known as "bath salts," cathinones contain chemical compounds that mimic the effects of cocaine or meth.

Though the drugs' packaging states the products are not intended for human consumption, their design, labeling and marketing clearly allude to the products being smoked and inhaled as a drug.

Why are they so dangerous?

One reason that synthetic drugs are extremely dangerous is that buyers don't know what chemicals they are ingesting. Individual products can contain a vast range of different chemical formulations and potencies, some of which can be two to 500 times stronger than THC.

How common is synthetic drug abuse?

According to the American Association of Poison Control Centers, calls nationwide indicate a dramatic rise in synthetic drug abuse. Calls from around the country to poison control centers regarding severe reactions to synthetic marijuana numbered 2,915 in 2010, and rose to more than 6,300 in 2011. Synthetic bath salt use also rose. In 2010 poison control centers received 303 calls about injuries and deaths caused by bath salts; 2011, there were more than 6,000 reports.

Synthetic drugs now illegal in Florida

Since reports were completed in 2011, much has been done to make these drugs illegal in the State of Florida. Attorney General Pam Bondi has waged a war across the State and stopped the over-the-counter sales of these deceptive packages of drugs that appeal to children. The list of illegal synthetic drugs, known as Schedule II, grows almost monthly and can be viewed on the attorney general's website.

Ice Bucket Challenge for innocent victims

In the spirit of giving at the Marti Williams Homecoming event, Justice Coalition's Executive Director, Ann Dugger, and Larry Ward, JC Board member, accepted the now famous Ice Bucket Challenge on behalf of innocent victims of violent crime! Happy to assist them by pouring the bucket of ice and water on their heads was one of Justice Coalition's victim advocates, Scotty McGee.

SHERIFFS' CHOICES FOR EXTRAORDINARY CITIZENS

John E. Guns
Jacksonville Sheriff's Office

Selected by Sheriff John Rutherford as 2014's Extraordinary Citizen for Duval County, Rev. John E. Guns, pastor of St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church is founder of the program, Operation Save Our Sons. The organization is working with non-profits, school districts, and law enforcement to help them teach young African-American men how to respond better when confronted by police or anyone else. That education started with an event called Fathers Calling Fathers (which works with fathers and male authority figures to help them talk with the young men in their lives) and continues with a Million Son March next year in Washington.

A mentoring program called Difference Makers will be launched in Duval County's school system to work with at-risk young men. The group will work with community organizations and police to set up programs that help teens develop more respect for officers. Rev. Guns' commitment to help better the young men of the Jacksonville community and beyond is second to none. Sheriff Rutherford proudly selected Rev. Guns as he has "made teaching VALUES and VIRTUE his personal ministry... working tirelessly to close the gap through parenting and mentoring programs, and raising our collective consciousness about the importance of values and personal responsibility," he said.

Judge Phyllis M. Rosier
Baker County

Selected by Sheriff Joey Dobson as 2014's Extraordinary Citizen for Baker County, Judge Phyllis M. Rosier began her career with HRS in 1970, where she worked closely with dependent and delinquent youth in Suwannee and Hamilton counties. After seeing the need for services among troubled youth, Judge Rosier pursued her Law Degree from the University of Florida where she graduated with Honors in June, 1981. She was admitted to the Florida Bar in October 1981, and began work in the 3rd Judicial State Attorney's office, specializing in sexual battery cases, crimes against children, and juvenile cases. Judge Rosier worked in this capacity until she entered the private sector, allowing her to practice a full range of legal matters.

In April 2006, Governor Jeb Bush appointed Judge Rosier as Circuit Judge for the 8th Judicial Circuit and she continues to fill this appointment in Bradford and Baker Counties today.

She is known by those who must appear before her to be always fair and impartial when handing down sentences. She holds the safety of children first and foremost in her ability to help those whose lives have been entrusted to her. Keeping victims safe from further harm has always been her objective.

Sheriff Dobson said, "She is highly respected among her fellow judges and law enforcement agencies and I am proud to call her my friend and my Champion for Justice."

Dana Fitzgerald
Nassau County

Selected by Sheriff Bill Leeper as 2014's Extraordinary Citizen for Nassau County, Dana has donated more than 375 volunteer hours to the Nassau County Sheriff's Office (NCSO) over the last 21 months, not including his involvement in the NCSO Citizens Academy or Citizens Advisory Team.

Dana has embraced a spirit of service that exemplifies his unwavering devotion to the people of Nassau County. His volunteerism reaches beyond the NCSO as he volunteers at Baptist Nassau, assisting both the medical service community and patients with his time, treasure, and talent.

He takes pride in the NCSO and in giving to his community. He displays his true loyalty as an ambassador for the NCSO, exemplifying his integrity and professionalism by codifying the mission statement of the Sheriff's Office; Integrity, Respect, Fairness and Caring. His contributions vary in the following areas: elderly in-home safety checks, special event, home security checks, parking enforcement, and traffic control.

Tom & Anne Robert
St Johns County

Selected by Sheriff David Shoar as 2014's Extraordinary Citizen for St. Johns County, Tom and Anne Robert are upstanding members of their community as well as strong supporters of the law enforcement profession. They are always available to help victims in need and lend their assistance any way they can. The benevolence they have bestowed upon our agency, along with other organizations in St. Johns County, makes them the obvious choice to receive the Justice Coalition's Extraordinary Citizen Award.

As the executors of the Bruce G. & Mary A. Robert Family Foundation, Tom and Anne have graciously given to our agency's Four Star Association fund which is utilized to support several of the valuable and quality programs that are integral to the services the Sheriff's Office provides. The fund also contributes to scholarships for the youth in St. Johns County and supplements emergency assistance (including victim assistance) to our citizens in need.

Of course, none of these services would be possible without the support and kind generosity Tom and Anne Robert have shown to our agency, as well as to our community. Words cannot express our gratitude and appreciation for all they do. They are truly exceptional human beings.

Dale Murray
Bradford County

Selected by Sheriff Gordon Smith as 2014's Extraordinary Citizen for Bradford County, Dale Murray is personally invested in his community. His philosophy of personal and corporate action is ubiquitous throughout the local area. From educating the community's children to feeding the hungry; and from caring for the indigent, elderly, and neglected veterans to financing the construction of a local rescue animal shelter, Dale Murray's compassionate generosity makes him the obvious choice for this award. Additionally, his support for local law enforcement and emergency services has been instrumental in bringing numerous educational events to the community and schools for various crime prevention programs.

As a business person, Dale's philosophy is that words are necessary to communicate ideas, because when words and ideas are backed-up with real action they can improve lives. He improves lives in many ways and is as reliable as the vehicles he sells. Dale's actions when helping innocent victims of violent crimes transition from "survivors into thrivers" benefit the community as a whole and deem him worthy to be considered an Extraordinary Citizen.

EXTRAORDINARY LOCAL BUSINESS LEADER

Steve Halverson

Steve Halverson, President of Haskell Company in Jacksonville, Florida, has been a lifeline to Justice Coalition and innocent victims of violent crime with his personal support. The great compassion he has demonstrated from his first visit to the Justice Coalition, when he learned of a ten-year-old victim who had witnessed his own father's murder, to his ongoing support with his generosity, his wise counsel, and his assistance in raising awareness for the Justice Coalition among other area business leaders, Steve Halverson has been a strong force in victim advocacy and the fight against crime.

JUSTICE COALITION'S

EXTRAORDINARY GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL(S)

SENATOR ROB BRADLEY AND REPRESENTATIVE CHARLES MCBURNEY

Rep. Charles McBurney

Sen. Rob Bradley

Senator Rob Bradley and Representative Charles McBurney have recognized Justice Coalition's work in the fight for victims' rights as well as the fight against crime, and have helped increase recognition of our efforts in Tallahassee. Together they have joined Justice Coalition in the fight for tougher laws on criminals and the fight against crime. They heard the desperate cry for sexual predators to face harsher penalties and worked immediately took action following the kidnapping, sexual assault and murder of eight-year-old Cherish Perrywinkle find the loopholes in the system that allows for these predators to go free. Each was instrumental in pinpointing the problems and finding solutions. Senator Bradley was one of four who submitted a bill to the Senate concerning those who commit sex crimes. Gov. Scott signed it into law in April 2014.

Javardo & Cindy Jones
Clay County

Selected by Sheriff Rick Beseler as 2014's Extraordinary Citizen for Clay County, Javardo and Cindy Jones are a unique duo he describes as a "power couple." This "power couple" uses the power of prayer, the strength of their faith, and the bond of their marriage to make a real difference for victims in the Clay County community as well as for those who once hurt victims – the men and women incarcerated in the Clay County Jail.

The Clay County Jail Ministry conducts eleven services a week inside the jail, including Bible studies. Out of 180 volunteers from thirty different churches, the Jones' dedication and effectiveness stands out. This humble duo is the embodiment of the Jail Ministry's motto, shaping one life at a time. Their goal, and of all those who join CCSO Chaplain Doug Matyi in this effort, is to see an end result that benefits the community – inmates who reenter society as productive citizens and no longer pose a threat to others, becoming an asset to the community.

Javardo Jones has been active in prison ministry for more than twenty years. He also mentors juvenile delinquents and strives to reduce the rate of recidivism. In every way possible, Cindy Jones has been by his side on this mission, her talents put to work in teaching, music, cooking and more—in addition to raising their three children. The Joneses founded the HOPE Center in Orange Park. HOPE stands for Helping Others Pursue Excellence, because they believe if a person has hope and is pursuing excellence, he or she is far less likely to pursue a life of crime. Sheriff Beseler said the Javardo and Cindy Jones are on the front lines of the fight against crime and are truly Champions for Justice.

EXTRAORDINARY CITIZEN

Beverly McClain

Beverly McClain has been a powerful force for murder victims and citizens in need in Jacksonville since the murder of her own son eight years ago. Out of her personal heartbreak she found a personal mission—helping others such as herself—and so was born Families of Slain Children, Inc. She began a small support group in a room in her church, but within months had outgrown the room and moved into and remodeled a house on Myrtle Ave. that serves as a lighthouse in her community to this day.

Not only is she a solid support system for those who have lost children to murder by providing comfort and encouragement through prayer and friendship, clothing and food, she has become an aid to those in need in the neighborhood around the FOSCI house. When an emergency arises or a child needs help, hope, and encouragement, Beverly McClain can be counted on. Many times Justice Coalition has called upon her to help provide emergency assistance of food, clothing and even transportation for a victimized family, and she always met the need. She has risen up out of the ashes of despair and become a beacon of hope...truly an Extraordinary Citizen.

The House that Love Rebuilt

A pictorial journey from the fire damage to the fire engine escort home

Dianne and Max George
— Neighbors extraordinaire

The interior of the home was destroyed by the fire.

The garage where the fire was started, less than a burned out shell.

Having saved her life and sparing much of her house, the JFRD fire truck escorted Ms. Marti to her homecoming celebration.

Builders Care gave their time and so much more.

Friends of the JC worked hard to put the finishing touches in Ms. Marti's house.

Reconstructing the garage: The garage wall goes up! The frame of the garage and living room are complete, the garage door is hung. Work goes on around the clock.

Uptown Civitan Club

Al Hesla and Michael Richardson installed cabinets.

VEMA (Veteran Enforcers Motorcycle Assoc.) assisted for two days in the cleanup effort.

The kitchen after remodeling.

The new living room and a peek into the remodeled dining room.

Made up of the businesses and individuals who gave time, labor, money and furnishings, this is part of the crowd waiting on her front lawn to welcome Ms. Marti home.

From the floor to the rooftop and everything in between... even the yard and rocking chairs on the porch...everything was made new by the compassionate generosity of the people of Jacksonville and from the bottom of our hearts, we at the Justice Coalition thank you!!!

Larry Ward, Matt Wilford of Builders Care, and Brian Sobolewski of MicroTech worked together to make these renovations possible.

At the Homecoming press conference, Ann Dugger and Marti Williams thank JSO, Jacksonville Fire and Rescue (IAFF President Randy Wyse, top right corner), VEMA and the businesses and individuals who helped make coming home possible.

Thank You! Thank You! Thank You!

THANK YOU! to the many businesses and individuals who were instrumental in rebuilding Marti Williams' home through donations of time, labor, materials, services, furnishings, money and gift cards. You put the unity back into commUNITY! Thank you for being the COMMUNITY THAT CARES!

Tammy and her husband, John, have fostered more than 50 abused, neglected, and/or abandoned children in the last ten years. When they took in two infant boys, Tammy found herself in need of strollers, car seats and infant clothing, but there was no storehouse from which foster families could get such items. She began collecting donations of items necessary to take care of any child, from infancy to 18 years.

Hats Off to Tammy McGuire, founder and president of Foster Closet, a woman who filled her own closet six years ago with donations to take care of foster children and began sharing them with others in the foster care system. Donations poured in and word of her endeavors spread. She quickly went from her personal closet to an entire store where anyone with court-ordered care of children can "shop" for free. She receives clothes, books, Bibles, toys, board games, puzzles, DVDs, CDs, educational computer games, sporting equipment, furniture, kitchen goods, bicycles, electronics and much more at her Beach Blvd. store, and has shared them with over 5,000 children so far. She has also started Pathway, a program to assist teens transitioning from foster care into adulthood.

But anyone can collect clothes and other essentials and give them away, Tammy says. Her impassioned purpose is much deeper than the transfer of material goods.

"It's not about the stuff we give...it's the way we present it to the children," she said. "It's more about ministering through things. We get on their level to find that glimmer of hope within...that smile within."

She and her staff and volunteers strive to make every connection with a child a personal one. For Tammy, whether it is her and John's two children, the many foster children she has cared for in her home, or the children who come into her store, she feels they have been entrusted to her. She has no guarantee how long she will have any of them in her life, whether thirty minutes or a lifetime, and it is vital to her that she pour goodness into them for as long as they are in her care.

This mission became especially important to her when she was fostering a preteen girl and her two young brothers. They were eating peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, she recalls, when the little girl began crying.

"I'm the one who put us in Foster Care," she said. Tammy's heart ached as she listened to a little girl who missed her mother take on a responsibility that didn't belong to her. At only 11 years old, this big sister had been violently raped by her father over a six-month period, her brothers locked in a closet while the dad acted out his perversion upon his own daughter. And her mother knew. She knew and forced her trusting little girl to keep the "family secret." But when a teacher had the parents investigated, the victim found the courage to be honest about her father's actions.

Listening as the story continued and watching this strong little girl carrying the weight of the world, Tammy's heart filled with an overwhelming need to encourage her.

"You are the greatest person—adult or child—I've ever met in my life," Tammy told her with a voice full of compassion, honesty, and admiration. "You protected your brothers. I can't tell exactly how you feel, but I want you to know you are my hero and their hero."

As their talk continued, Tammy realized she was able to empower this child. In that moment, the young girl who had been severely victimized learned that she was so much more than the sum total of the horrors she had experienced. She saw an adult honor her rather than pillage the treasure of who she is.

"A lot of children who have been victimized never hear the good about them," Tammy said. "It is so important to make victimized children feel heroic...to help them see they've lived through so much and came out of it."

Her personal mission is to show whatever child comes into her home or her store such love that they will remember those moments and feelings they experienced and yearn for more, seeking the same for their own lives. She has learned that children remember even the briefest of times in foster care and so has determined to make every moment—every memory—count. And no matter the horror story, she doesn't believe in giving up; she has learned the value of an opportunity.

"I tell others who advocate for victims to never give up," she said. "You might not see results today, but you can plant seeds for tomorrow."

For the flowers of love and hope that grow in the children on the First Coast whose lives you touch, we say Hats Off to you, Tammy McGuire. Thank you for making a difference.

Tammy McGuire

Hubbard House to host 20th Annual Barbara Ann Campbell Memorial Breakfast

WHAT: Hubbard House will host its 20th Annual Barbara Ann Campbell Memorial Breakfast, Wednesday, October 15. The breakfast, which is attended by more than 550 individuals annually, is the highlight of Hubbard House's Domestic Violence Awareness Month. The breakfast honors survivors of domestic violence, remembers those who have died at the hands of a "loved one," and to connect those who work to end domestic violence in our community.

The breakfast is presented by the Alan and Pam Green Family Foundation, Hubbard House Foundation, Smart Pharmacy and Mrs. James S. Taylor. Visit www.hubbardhouse.org for more information.

WHEN: Wednesday, Oct. 15, 2014

7:30 – 9:00 a.m., doors open at 7:00 a.m.

WHERE: Hyatt Regency Jacksonville Riverfront Hotel
225 East Coastline Dr., Jacksonville, FL 32202

VISUAL OPPORTUNITIES:

550+ community members coming together to raise awareness about domestic violence.

INVITED GUESTS/INTERVIEW OPPORTUNITIES:

Guests include Ellen Siler, Hubbard House CEO; Sheriff John Rutherford; Lori Day, Hubbard House Board President; Mary Baer, WJXT News Anchor; and two domestic violence survivors.

WHO: Founded as the first domestic violence shelter in Florida in 1976, Hubbard House is a certified, comprehensive domestic violence center providing programs and services to more than 5,000 women, children, and men annually in Duval and Baker counties. While Hubbard House is most known for its emergency shelter, the agency also provides extensive adult and youth outreach services, school-based education, therapeutic childcare, batterers' intervention programs, court advocacy and volunteer and community education opportunities. Visit www.hubbardhouse.org to learn more.
